

No Impact Week March 2013

Art Exhibit Opening What Goes Around, Comes Around
March 8 from 7 - 8 pm at Guilford College (Founders Hall)

The presence of plastics in our oceans has proven to be a significant threat to marine life, navigational safety, and a potential health risk to humans. Using some of the plastics Bonnie Monteleone has collected from her near 10,000 nm experiences at sea, she has created 25 feet of canvas art.

The exhibit combines science with art to illustrate the compromised environment for the sake of convenience and how discarded plastics can come back in a not-so convenient way.

Presentation: Living Plastic Free
March 9 from 10 am - noon at Kathleen Clay Library

We have all heard about the problems with plastic, but what can one do to be part of the solution? Join us for inspiring stories and practical tips about ways to reduce plastic. Author Beth Terry will share her journey from plastic addict to plastic-free activist and explain why we can't recycle our way out of this mess.

She will be joined by North Carolina mom Danielle Richardet, whose own quest to live a more plastic-free life led to a successful campaign to keep cigarette waste off her local beach. Danielle will also share tips on how to get kids involved. Beth Terry's book, Plastic-Free, will be available for purchase and signing.

For more information about these programs:
E-mail melanie.buckingham@greensboro-nc.gov

Kathleen Clay Edwards Family Branch Library
1420 Price Park Rd., (336) 373-2923

www.greensborolibrary.org

